

- Light energy travels 93 million miles from the sun.
- This light hits green pigments called chlorophyll.
- Chlorophyll takes this light energy and breaks water bonds.
- Carbon, Hydrogen, and Oxygen are turned into sugar.
- This process stores the light energy as chemical energy-producing oxygen as a by-product.